Dear Mrs. Coling,

My name is Susan Harris and I am writing on behalf of the students at Lockwood High School. Many students at the school have been working on a project about the youth unemployment problem in Lockwood. You are invited to attend a special presentation that will be held at our school auditorium on April 16th. At the presentation, students will propose a variety of ideas for developing employment opportunities for the youth within the community. As one of the famous figures in the community, we would be honored by your attendance. We look forward to seeing you there.

Sincerely,

Susan Harris

2. 다음 글에 드러난 Shaun의 심경으로 가장 적절한 것은?

Finally, it was Shaun's turn to give a speech. When he opened his mouth, nothing but air escaped his throat. Then he tried to speak again, not knowing what to say. He had prepared to talk about time and he started with the word: 'Time....' But nothing followed. Shaun could not find the words. Laughter started to pass through the auditorium from front to back. Even the judges looked disappointed. He didn't know what to say. He looked into the crowd. The audience at the contest were laughing out loud now, at him, at his inability.

6. chuckwalla에 관한 다음 글의 내용과 일치하지 않는 것은?

Chuckwallas are fat lizards, usually 20-25cm long, though they may grow up to 45cm. They weigh about 1.5kg when mature. Most chuckwallas are mainly brown or black. Just after the annual molt, the skin is shiny. Lines of dark brown run along the back and continue down the tail. As the males grow older, these brown lines disappear and the body color becomes lighter; the tail becomes almost white. It is not easy to distinguish between male and female chuckwallas, because young males look like females and the largest females resemble males.

Dear Mr. Rosenquist,

I hope you are having a pleasant day. My name is Andrew Jackson, and I am a political science student examining the evolution of environmental activity in South America. My professor, Dr. Kim, said that you are one of the most influential experts in the area, and he suggested I contact you for my research. So I'd like to get your opinion about the environmental problems of the region. Your knowledge about the region and the environment is sure to be of great help for me to complete the research. Please give me a chance to interview you. It won't take more than one hour. I'm really looking forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely yours,

Andrew Jackson

9. 다음 글에 드러난 Angela의 심경 변화로 가장 적절한 것은?

Angela and her family moved to a new town, so she had to go to a new school. On her first day, Angela walked into her new class, and her homeroom teacher introduced her to everyone. During the introduction, Angela stood at the front of the room. She faced the rows of girls and boys staring back at her. Her heart was beating fast and her hands were sweaty. At that moment, however, she remembered what her mother had told her, that she should be confident in front of her new friends. She tried to stay in control and put a big smile on her face, recalling her mother's advice. To her great delight, it worked! Two girls came to her after class and introduced themselves. They said that they were interested in getting to know her better, and asked her to sit with them at lunchtime.

11. Otaheite apple에 관한 다음 글의 내용과 일치하지 않는 것은?

Otaheite apple is native to Southeast Asia, and is widely found in the Pacific Island countries. The name Otaheite is the old name for Tahiti. It might be mistaken for a green-skinned mango, but it is longer. Otaheite apple measures from 5 to 9 cm. Inside the Otaheite apple, there is a star-shaped central core with five small, pale green seeds; this is noticeable if the fruit is cut in horizontal slices. The oval fruit has a relatively thick peel and the flesh inside is hard and crisp. When it is unripe, it is very sour and not sweet. However, when it is ripe, the flavor can be quite good and tastes something like a mango-flavored apple.

On her way home from work, Rebecca accidentally left her laptop computer on the subway. She only realized the mistake an hour later while eating dinner with her family. Rebecca hurried to the Lost & Found office in the subway station, filed a report, and returned home. Actually, she had given up hope of ever seeing her laptop again. At that moment she got a phone call from a stranger who had discovered her laptop computer on the subway and wanted to return it to her. After a thirty-minute cab ride to his neighborhood, she received her laptop back completely undamaged. She was really pleased to see it again.

Kobus leche is an antelope found in Botswana, Zambia, northeastern Namibia, and eastern Angola. Kobus leche is found in wetlands, where they live on plants that grow in water. They use the knee-deep water as protection from predators. Their legs are covered in a waterproof substance which allows them to run quite fast in knee-deep water. The back legs are somewhat longer in proportion than those of other antelopes, to ease long-distance running in muddy soil. They gather in herds which can include many thousands of individuals. Herds are usually all of one gender, but during mating season they mix with the other gender.

Brian, who lived in London, was a huge fan of the New York Yankees, a popular baseball team in the U.S. His dream was to see a Yankees game in person someday. His chance finally came when he had to go to New York for a business meeting. He knew that there was a baseball game between the New York Yankees and the LA Dodgers in New York on the same day the meeting was being held. He was thrilled that he might get to see the game if the meeting finished early. Luckily, the meeting ended earlier than planned, so he rushed to the stadium in the hope that his dream would come true. However, a ticket agent told him that there were no tickets left, even though he had arrived at the stadium about 40 minutes before the game started. He had no choice but to give up on his dream and go back to his hotel.

The calliope hummingbird, which has a thin bill and a short tail, is the smallest bird in North America. In the summertime, it is commonly found in mountain grasslands across the northwestern United States. Migration takes place across the Southwest as this bird spends winter in Mexico. It uses moss to construct a cup-shaped nest that is decorated with spider webs and attached to a branch of a tree. The female alone builds the nest; the male doesn't play any role. The female lays two eggs at a time, and incubates them for about two weeks. When the eggs hatch, the female feeds and cares for the young by herself without the male's assistance.

Dear Mrs. Bennet,

Thank you for your note. You are right—Tyler often does not have enough time to play. There are a dozen of children in my class who do not know how to zip up their jackets. By the time I get the last one ready for breaktime, it is almost time to come in. Some people think I teach children, but what I really do is dress them! If you could work with Tyler on zipping up his jacket, it would be a big help. This may not sound like a big thing, but I'm sure you know it is. Dear Carlson,

I'm happy to have a chance to comment on Nick Smith. The work he did for us was satisfactory, and we have not had any problem with his work so far. Especially, Nick is good at solving problems in an innovative manner. For example, we were having a problem figuring out how to install a swinging door in the bedroom — there wasn't enough room for it, so Nick designed a very unique and beautiful sliding door to replace a swinging door. In addition, he always took time to answer our questions kindly. If you're thinking over repairing your bedroom, bathroom, or living room in a fancy way, I'm sure Nick will suit your demand.

Sincerely,

Eric Anderson

Our team decided to climb Mount Jefferson, the second highest peak in Oregon. All of the team members strapped on their own backpack, and I tried to put mine on my back, but it was so heavy that I couldn't do it on my own. I was at a loss and didn't want anybody to see me in trouble. After a moment, I managed to put it on my back. Finally, we set off to the top of the mountain. At first I couldn't walk in a straight line due to the weight of my backpack, but thankfully, the team members around me willingly helped me keep my balance and walk. They continued this kind behavior till we reached the top of the mountain.

Tiziano Vecellio, known as Titian in English, was born in a small village in Italy located near the Austrian border. The exact date of his birth is unknown. In 1498, Titian and his younger brother Francesco were sent to Venice to start training as painters in the workshop of Sebastiano Zuccato. While his brother stayed there to study, Titian left to be an apprentice for Giovanni Bellini. About seven years later, he left Bellini and went to study under Giorgione. Titian was Giorgione's personal assistant until 1510. Their painting styles are hard to tell the difference, and their paintings, unless signed or documented, are sometimes labeled as being painted by both artists.

Chuck Close was born in Monroe, Washington in 1940. He is one of America's greatest living artists. He creates paintings based on large photographs of friends and family. He first created very large black-and-white works, using a grid to enlarge the work. In the 1980s, he began to use many colors in his works. In 1988, Close suffered an illness that left him severely paralyzed. He was able to use his arms but not his hands. A device strapped to his arm permits him to hold his brush. He continues to work with photos and a grid format, but the brushstrokes are looser. Close's recent works have been compared with those of the Impressionist Claude Monet because of their use of brilliant colors.

The mountain shelter had four walls, with an opening about five feet wide in the front wall. I picked a spot in a corner. Other hikers arrived; it would be a full house tonight. It was seven o’clock and the start of one of the worst nights of my life. When I crawled into my sleeping bag, my underwear was still moist after sweating so much on the difficult climbs of the day, and none of my other clothing was dry. I could not ignore another inconvenience, either: the air movement brought to the surface all the smells of bodies and wet sleeping bags. Lying on the floor in the corner of the crowded shelter, surrounded by bad smells, I could not fall asleep.

The tuatara is a rare, medium-sized reptile found only in New Zealand. Tuataras look like two-foot-long lizards, but they are not lizards. The tuatara has not evolved, so it is just the same as it was 200 million years ago. It has teeth that are part of its jaw bone and soft skin with scales, and it has three eyes! The tuatara's third eye gets covered with scales as it grows up. Another amazing thing about a tuatara is how long it can hold its breath. It can go for one hour without breathing! Tuataras live to be 60 to 80 years old. They are not ready to mate until they are between 13 and 20 years old. Nine months after tuataras mate, the female lays eggs. Then, it takes at least one year for the eggs to hatch! Since the parents do not raise the babies, baby tuataras have to take care of themselves.

I woke up in complete darkness. My chest hurt, everything was black, and the screams were still ringing in my ears. As I lay tensely, my heart pounding, I realized it had been a dream. My flat was silent. I lay there for a few minutes, letting my breathing slow until my eyes had adjusted to the darkness, and then I rose and walked barefoot to the window. Same old nightmares. Once I was leaning out of the window, taking deep breaths of the night air, I felt better. After having a nightmare, an open sky was the best way for me to throw it off. I always liked looking out my window whenever something bothered me. This time was no exception. I was beginning to find myself getting ready to go to sleep again.

As a Nicaraguan professional boxer, Alexis Argüello was a three-weight world champion. He had never lost any of his world titles as a world champion. Instead, he abandoned them each time in pursuit of titles in higher weight classes. On November 12, 1982, he tried to become the first world champion in 4 different weights, meeting the heavier and future Hall-of-Famer Aaron Pryor. Argüello was knocked out in the 14th round. Despite his defeat, he remained very friendly with Aaron Pryor, and the pair saw each other several times a year until Argüello’s death in 2009. Argüello was a cat fancier and had several articles published in Cat Fancy magazine throughout the 1990s. In 2008 he was honored by being selected as Nicaragua’s flag-bearer at the Opening Ceremony of the Beijing Olympics.

Dear Mr. Gray,

After many years of positive experiences using your hotel chain, I recently faced a problem which I never thought would have happened at one of your hotels. Last week when I confirmed my stay at your hotel, a member of your front desk staff, Ms. Daisy, apparently made a mistake in our booking. She reserved just one single room for our group of four, though we were in need of two double rooms. This error caused a major inconvenience for us, as we only found out about it at the last moment and the four of us had no choice but to share the same room. Due to Ms.

Daisy’s carelessness, our vacation was ruined. I am confident that you will understand my disappointment, and I would appreciate it if you could provide me with appropriate compensation. I look forward to your prompt response in this matter.

Sincerely,

Matt Dawson

After the morning’s classes, I experienced the most classic and unforgettable moment at school. This surely beats falling down on the ice in front of a group of expert skaters. What happened was, I was walking away from the lunch line, looking for an empty table, when I hit a patch of something slippery on the floor. I skidded, and boom! My tray flipped over, and I couldn’t right it in time, and all of its contents swooshed onto the floor and made a massive crash! There was a split second of dead silence, then the typical reaction: The whole school clapped, and I was at a loss, my face turning red. I tried to clean it up but everyone laughed. I wanted to freeze the whole room and hoped that my best friends would arrive at my side.

The Canada goose is a large wild goose species with a black head and neck and a brown body. The birds are found all over America at varying times of the year, and when migrating they fly in a V-formation, stopping frequently to feed. The population is currently on the increase and the size of the birds varies considerably, with those in the north tending to be smaller. In the breeding season the male behaves very aggressively as he defends his territory, even attacking larger birds if necessary. The nest is constructed from plant matter and it's usually situated in flat areas near water. The female lays and incubates 2-12 white eggs that hatch after 25-30 days. After being hatched, the young leave the nest with their parents, and they stay together until the following spring.

Suddenly, the principal's voice came over the intercom. "Good afternoon," he said. "I have the results of yesterday's student council elections. For the eighth-grade class: Evan Anderson, president..." Amanda held her breath. 'Oh, please say my name!' "For the seventh-grade class," the principal continued. "Omar Kazdan, president..." Amanda sat frozen, stunned. 'Omar won.

And I lost.' Amanda tried to keep a smile on her face. But the forced smile made her cheeks hurt, and she was afraid if she blinked, tears would slip down her face.

95. Curtis Flood에 관한 다음 글의 내용과 일치하지 않는 것은?

Curtis Flood is known today for the first player in Major League Baseball to challenge the famous “reserve clause,” which allowed baseball club owners to buy or sell players without their consent. When he had been sold to the Philadelphia Phillies in 1969, he refused to go. That year, he was in the best condition of his career results and broke records as a center fielder. He said that a player wasn’t an item to be bought and sold. He took the case to court, and eventually it went to the United States Supreme Court. In 1972, the court voted in favor of the baseball club owners. Although Flood lost his lawsuit, he paved the way for the defeat of the reserve clause. By the late 1970s, thanks to him, baseball players had options to choose the team on which they played.

I read about a small boy who was always late home from school. His parents warned him one day that ① he must be home on time that afternoon. Nevertheless, he arrived later than ever. His mother met ② him at the door and said nothing. At dinner that night, the boy looked at his plate. There was a slice of bread and a glass of water. ③ He looked at his father's full plate and then at his father, but his father remained silent. The boy was very upset. The father waited for the full impact to be felt, then quietly took the boy’s plate and placed it in front of him. ④ He took his own plate of meat and potatoes, put it in front of the boy, and smiled at his son. When that boy grew to be a man, ⑤ he said, “I learned what forgiveness is.”

Dear Mr. Grey:

My friend Brooke knows everyone in town. This creates a huge distraction when we dine in a restaurant because she is constantly looking around to see who else she knows. When she spots someone, she leaves me sitting at the table to go and say hello to the person. If this happened once, it would be acceptable. But it occurs continually throughout the meal and interrupts our conversation. I have reached the point of no longer wanting to dine with her although she is a good friend. How would you recommend resolving this?

Sincerely,

Josh Miller

Ellie was on her way to a restaurant. If she turned right at the corner and crossed the street, she would be there. But at the very corner she paused and looked over her shoulder. She saw that a man was indeed following her! Her eyes went wide, and her face turned white. Ellie realized that the crosswalk light was about to turn red. If she ran through it, he would be stuck waiting at the corner. So Ellie ran straight ahead and crossed the street. But when she looked over her shoulder again, the man was moving rapidly through the cars and trucks, ignoring the traffic. Ellie felt a chill go down her spine.

107. 다음 글에 드러난 Josey의 심경으로 가장 적절한 것은?

When Josey and her mom, Betty, finally returned downstairs, people were gathered in the main hall around the collection of gifts they’d brought and deposited there. When Betty asked Josey to help open the presents now, Josey squealed with pleasure and threw herself into the pile. She tore away the wrapping papers like a hungry big cat, unstably lifting each gift over her head. Then she handed it to a helper, who would put it away safely and catalogue it for Betty. There were thirty or forty presents, all so luxuriously wrapped and fancifully ribboned. Although the strappings of the presents slowed Josey down enough, she didn’t show any irritation. Still it was going to be a lengthy process, everyone fully indulging the delight of the child.

109. sun bear에 관한 다음 글의 내용과 일치하지 않는 것은?

The sun bear is a small species of bear that inhabits the dense, tropical forests of Southeast Asia. Also known as the Malaysian sun bear and the honey bear, the sun bear has a number of distinctive features. One of them is the orange U-shaped marking on its chest from which it gets its name. Sun bear populations are known to be drastically decreasing, as sun bears are threatened by both hunting by humans and habitat loss throughout much of their natural range. The sun bear has a long tongue that can be up to 25cm long and is used to extract insects and honey from nests. Sun bears spend the majority of their time high in the trees; they are therefore incredibly good at using their long, curved claws for climbing.

I thought I knew how to drive. But when I drove out of the parking lot, I doubted whether I could make it. There was a dangerous road with its hairpin turns that twisted back and forth down the mountain. At the first curve, my heart started beating fast. My palms were sweating and slippery on the wheel. I crept along with my foot on the brake, but the road doubled back so sharply and dropped so steeply that even with my foot on the brake, the car was going faster than I wanted it to. 116. Elsie Inglis에 관한 다음 글의 내용과 일치하지 않는 것은?

Elsie Inglis, the second daughter of John Inglis, was born in India on 16th August, 1864. She had the good fortune to have enlightened parents who considered the education of a daughter as important as that of a son. With the support of her father, she began to train as a doctor. Terrified by the poor medical treatment for female patients, she founded a hospital for women in Edinburgh in which the staff consisted only of women. She was also actively engaged in politics and worked for women's voting rights. The outbreak of the First World War turned her attention to helping the troops, and she organized fourteen medical units to send to battlefields throughout Europe. Caring for both soldiers and civilians suffering from sickness, Inglis became ill in Russia and was forced to return to Britain, where she died in 1917. She is still remembered as a wonderful woman of enthusiasm, strength, and kindness.
